Of course, yes, replied their father. Answer these questions Why did Bola and Yemi wake up late? Why were they afraid? Why was their father smiling? Where did their mother have a baby? Tie _____ by: _____ Known: _____ Soid: _____ ground: _____ Complete the table below Statement Question Tags Responses 26 She hasnt met you 27 It is raining 28 They are looking for me 29 He wasnt tired 30 You cant attend the party SECTION C: COMPOSITION Write a composition on My Best friend Explanation The correct answer is "many" because "many" is used with countable nouns to indicate a large number. Since "oranges" is a countable noun (we can count the individual oranges), "many" is the proper word choice. "Much" is used with uncountable nouns like "water" or "sugar," where you can't count individual units. "More" and "most" indicate comparative and superlative forms, respectively, and do not fit the context here. Therefore, "many" is the most accurate answer, making the sentence, "There are many oranges in the basket," correct grammatically and contextually. Explanation The correct answer is "An" because the word "apple" begins with a vowel sound. In English grammar, the article "an" is used before words that start with vowel sounds (like "a," "e," "i," "o," and "u"), while "a" is used before consonant sounds. This rule helps ensure smooth pronunciation and clarity. Since "apple" starts with the vowel sound of "a," using "an" before it is grammatically correct. The sentence "I eat an apple every morning" demonstrates proper usage of the article "an" with a vowel-initial word. Explanation "Delight" is a word that expresses great pleasure or happiness, making "joy" the best matching option. It conveys a positive and pleasurable emotional state, typically resulting from something pleasing or satisfying. The word is often used in contexts where someone feels immense happiness or contentment, such as "She felt delight upon seeing her family." In contrast, "sadness," "anger," and "fear" are negative emotions and do not align with the meaning of "delight." Therefore, "joy" accurately reflects the feeling of delight and is the correct answer in this case. Correct Answer Explanation "Where are you going?" is correct because it ends with a question mark. Question marks are used at the end of interrogative sentences, which ask questions. The other options either lack punctuation or use incorrect punctuation. Using the correct punctuation is essential for clarity and understanding in written communication. Knowing when to use a question mark, period, exclamation mark, or comma helps in conveying the intended meaning of a sentence. Explanation "An" is the correct article because "elephant" starts with a vowel sound. The article "an" is used before words that begin with vowel sounds, while "a" is used before consonant sounds. "The" is used for specific nouns, and "some" is used for indefinite quantities. In this case, "an elephant" is grammatically correct and sounds natural. Using the correct article helps in forming clear and accurate sentences. Explanation "Slow" is the opposite of "fast." Antonyms are words with opposite meanings. "Quick," "rapid," and "speedy" are synonyms of "fast," meaning they have similar meanings. Knowing antonyms and synonyms helps expand vocabulary and improves understanding of word relationships. Using antonyms and synonyms effectively can make writing more varied and interesting. Explanation "On" is the correct preposition because it indicates that the book is placed on the surface of the table. Prepositions show the relationship between a noun or pronoun and other words in a sentence. "In" suggests being enclosed, "at" indicates a specific location, and "under" means below. "On" is the most appropriate preposition to describe the book's position. Explanation The word "play" is incorrect in this sentence because it is the present tense, while "Yesterday" indicates a past action. In English, verb tenses must match the time reference in the sentence. Using "played" aligns with the past context established by "yesterday," ensuring the sentence accurately describes an action that happened in the past. This correction makes the sentence read as, "Yesterday, I played basketball with my friends." Ensuring tense consistency helps to make sentences clear, precise, and grammatically correct, avoiding any confusion about when the action took place. Explanation The word "start" is a synonym for "begin" because both words mean to initiate or set in motion an action or process. Synonyms are words with similar meanings, allowing flexibility in language. "End" and "stop" mean to bring something to a conclusion or halt, which is the opposite of "begin." "Pause" means a temporary stop, but it doesnt imply initiation. Therefore, "start" is the best choice to convey the meaning of "begin" accurately. Recognizing synonyms helps enhance vocabulary and improves understanding of language nuances in different contexts. Explanation "Toys" is a plural noun because it represents more than one toy. Plural nouns are used to indicate multiple items. "Book" and "cat" are singular nouns, referring to one item each. "Mouse" is also singular, and its plural form is "mice." Recognizing plural nouns is important for understanding how to correctly use nouns in sentences. Plural nouns often end in "-s," but some, like "mice," have irregular forms. Knowing the difference between singular and plural helps in constructing grammatically correct sentences. Explanation The correct answer is "Pupil." By rearranging the letters "ulipp," you can form the word "pupil," which refers to a student, often in school, or the part of the eye that controls light entry. Unscrambling exercises like this help build vocabulary and test ones ability to recognize meaningful words from mixed-up letters. The other options, pupil, liupp, and lipupdo not make any meaningful words in English. Understanding and recognizing "pupil" as a common English word ensures clarity in language exercises and vocabulary-building tasks. Explanation "She" is a pronoun because it replaces a noun, typically a female person. Pronouns are used to avoid repetition of nouns. "Table" is a noun, "run" is a verb, and "happy" is an adjective. Pronouns like "she," "he," "it," "they," and "we" help make sentences more concise and easier to read. Understanding pronouns is important for constructing grammatically correct and fluent sentences. Explanation The word "Its" is incorrect because it should be "It's" with an apostrophe. "It's" is a contraction for "it is" or "it has," while "Its" is a possessive pronoun indicating ownership. Contractions in English require an apostrophe to replace omitted letters, showing the combination of two words. "Its" without an apostrophe is used when showing possession, like "its color" or "its shape." Using "It's" in this sentence clarifies the meaning, showing that the speaker is saying, "It is my first time playing football," rather than describing something the game itself possesses. Explanation The word "haughty" describes someone who is arrogantly superior and disdainful, often appearing excessively proud or self-important. While "proud" is similar, "haughty" specifically implies a negative, conceited attitude, typically showing a sense of superiority over others. People who are described as "haughty" may come across as dismissive, aloof, or even disrespectful toward those they perceive as beneath them. This attitude is in contrast with being "humble," which means modest and unassuming. The other options "joyful" and "tired" dont connect with pride or arrogance, making "proud" the closest match for "haughty." Correct Answer Explanation "Simpler" is a compound word because it's formed by combining two words: "sim" and "pler." Compound words are created by joining two or more words to form a new word with a different meaning. "Play," "jump," and "read" are single words. Recognizing compound words enhances vocabulary and improves understanding of word formation. Correct Answer Explanation A "derogatory sentence" does not exist as a recognized grammatical category. There are four main types of sentences in English: declarative, exclamatory, interrogative, and imperative. Declarative sentences make statements, exclamatory sentences express strong emotions, interrogative sentences ask questions, and imperative sentences give commands or requests. Although "derogatory" refers to language that is disrespectful or offensive, it is not a grammatical type of sentence. A sentence may have a derogatory tone, but this characteristic doesnt qualify it as a separate type of sentence in standard grammar classifications. Explanation "Writes" is the correct answer because it is the verb in the sentence, showing the action performed by the subject, "She." A verb describes what someone or something does, and in this case, it shows the action of writing. "Quickly" is an adverb describing how she writes, "She" is the subject, and "letter" is the object of the verb, which receives the action. Understanding verbs in sentences helps identify the core action, making it easier to analyze the sentence structure and other words within it. Correct Answer A. She doesnt like apples. Explanation The sentence "She doesnt like apples" is correct because it follows proper subject-verb agreement for third-person singular subjects. "Doesnt" is the contraction of "does not," which is used with singular third-person subjects like "he," "she," or "it." The other sentences incorrectly use "dont," a contraction for "do not," which is only correct with plural subjects or first- and second-person singular ("I" or "you"). Proper subject-verb agreement is essential in English to ensure that sentences are clear and grammatically accurate, making the intended meaning easy to understand. Explanation The past tense of "put" is "put." This word is an example of an irregular verb, meaning it does not change form when moving from present to past tense. Unlike regular verbs, which typically add -ed for the past tense (like "play" becoming "played"), "put" remains the same in both present and past contexts. This lack of change can sometimes cause confusion for learners, but "put" is consistently used in sentences like "I put the book down yesterday." Its essential to remember that some verbs, like "put," have unique, unchanging forms. Explanation The verb "annoy" means to cause mild irritation or to make someone a little angry. It often describes minor disturbances or nuisances that result in feelings of slight frustration, unlike stronger words such as "anger," which implies intense displeasure. "Distinguish" means to recognize differences, "glibberish" refers to nonsensical language, and "materialistic" describes someone focused on physical possessions. These words are unrelated to irritation. "Annoy" fits the question best as it describes actions or behaviors that provoke a small amount of anger, making it a common term for minor annoyances or grievances. Explanation "Went" is the simple past tense of "go." The simple past tense describes actions that happened in the past. "Goes" is the simple present tense, "gone" is the past participle, and "going" is the present participle. Irregular verbs like "go" have unique past tense forms, so it's important to remember them. Using the correct verb tense ensures that sentences accurately reflect when an action occurred. Explanation "Big" is an adjective because it describes the noun "dog." Adjectives modify nouns or pronouns, providing more information about their qualities or characteristics. "Dog" is a noun, "barked" is a verb, and "loudly" is an adverb. Adjectives answer questions like "What kind?" or "How many?" In this case, "big" tells us the size of the dog. Identifying adjectives helps in creating descriptive sentences and understanding how words function within a sentence. Correct Answer Explanation "Is swimming" is the present continuous tense, which describes an action happening now. The present continuous tense is formed using "is/am/are" plus the "-ing" form of the verb. "Swam" is the simple present tense, and "swimming" is itself is not a complete verb phrase. The present continuous tense is used to talk about actions that are in progress at the moment of speaking, or around the present time. Correct Answer Explanation The word "faint" means something that is barely perceptible or difficult to detect, like a faint smell or faint sound. It conveys an idea of weakness or subtlety, indicating that the subject is not easily noticed. For example, "The light was so faint it was barely visible." Other options, such as "a sloping position" or "a form of a curve," do not match this meaning. "Faint" specifically refers to something minimal or unclear, which can describe sounds, lights, or even feelings, making barely perceptible the accurate description in this context.
